09.00-09.30	8	Is financial reporting still an effective tool for equity investors in Australia?	AASB	Financial reporting has been the subject of recent criticism, particularly regarding the usefulness of financial statements for users' decision making. The academic research investigates the decision-usefulness of accounting information prepared in accordance with Australian Accounting Standards (which is essentially IFRS) for equity investors in Australia and what types of other information is considered to be decision-useful. The findings of the research will provide a valuable contribution to the ongoing debate of the relevance of financial reporting by providing evidence as to whether accounting information is declining in decision-usefulness over time and would help in setting the future agenda for financial reporting and assisting in understanding and developing the future role of financial reporting.
